

INCIDENT AT SEA

Nothing can stop brave men and stout ships from bringing

RAW ASBESTOS . . . vital to Industry and Victory

Thanks to the United Navies' valor and skill, fewer and fewer cargo vessels fall victim to skulking wolves of the sea. But when an enemy torpedo strikes—to pause, even for a moment, may place in further jeopardy other human lives and precious cargoes—cargoes of basic materials, like raw Asbestos, so vitally necessary for war production . . . From Africa, Russia, Australia—laden ships converge on American ports. Heedless of danger and death—obedient to duty—they fight through to discharge their cargoes. Dangerous journeys, but regularly accomplished to bring every quality and type of Asbestos to American industry. There is a special type of Asbestos precisely suited to each industrial and war need.
