Edward Rozycki - Deceased

Autopsy Findings

Conference Case 4-26-62 — Died of MedD

Bring up 3-28-63 — NOTE DATE

Died rather unexpectedly on 6-1-63

We are paying dependency benefits to the widow.

Adam Chase - local attorney - supplied me with the attached copy of Autopsy Report. It is not very legible & doesn't lend itself to reproduction too well. I have asked for a more legible copy - don't know whether I will get it or not, since we did not pay for the autopsy. So, this is the only copy we have —

Except —

I showed this report to Dr Burn several days ago. He skimmed through it & he was enthralled - I mean absolutely captivated by the Comments on the next to the last page. He asked me to leave the report with him for a few days, while digested it some more — 'cause this was most interesting !!

Today I went over and asked him for it, so I could forward it on to you. After looking several places, he couldn't locate it. He told me that it's around somewhere — he would locate it and then let me know.

I returned to the Medical Dept. later in the day and found Dr. Bow interpreting the report to Mary — She was to type up a legible copy. I asked Mary to give me a copy of whatever she was typing up for Dr. Bow to retain. She later brought over two reproduced sheets — one, the Comment page; the other, the Diagnosis page. I reproduced these 2 pages — They are also attached.

While the Comment page is "interesting" to say the least — and in my layman's eyes — might even be damaging, the glint in Dr. Bow's eyes and his general exhuberance was such ~~that~~ as if he had just came upon the greatest discovery in the World — one that confirmed his theory — one that he could hardly wait before he shared the great discovery with his buddies.

That's my concern — how much of this should be shared as gospel truth with his so called friends? — Or am I sniffing danger signs when there is really no danger around?

If there is some off-beat conclusion to be inferred from these Comments, you might want to call Dr Bow and dampen his exuberance.

LH.
