Mr. S. Simpson, President,
Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc.,
Bostwick and Railroad Aves.,
Bridgeport, Conn.

Dear Mr. Simpson:

In an advertisement published throughout the country this week, the National Association of Manufacturers presents four points which "American employers should see that their policies encourage." The second of the four points calls for:

> "(b) Working conditions that safeguard the health, dignity and self-respect of the individual employee;"

Industrial Hygiene Foundation represents private industry organized in a program of practical action for the advancement of employee health and the improvement of working conditions. This program, based upon research in the laboratory and in the plant, is producing constructive results for more and more companies; in fact in whole industries.

We appreciate the participation of Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc. in this work -- industry's principal effort to conserve its human resources. And with the human factor so dominant in production today, your benefits from the Foundation are greater each year. Accordingly, we look forward to serving your organization and to increasing the dividends of your Foundation membership in 1947.

Very truly yours,

John F. McMahon
Managing Director
